Personal Information Sharing

Our Online Services are made available to our commercial tenants and their workers. We may share information with our commercial tenants about how their workers are using and interacting with our Online Services. In most cases the information that we share with our commercial tenants will be aggregate (e.g., number of workers who have installed or used a workplace mobile application). However, in some circumstances we may share identifiable information. For example, we may share access card information with a tenant in the event of a security incident, to monitor compliance with and enforce workplace policies or government orders, or in situations relating to health, safety or security of persons or property. We may exchange personal information with tenants in order to administer a user's access to, or termination from, Online Services. If you submit feedback or a complaint through the VC Complex App that is more appropriately handled by our commercial tenant, we will share your information with the tenant so they can address your concerns.

Some of our Online Services may involve sharing personal information with other users. For example, as a convenience to users, we may provide a live video feed of certain public spaces to allow tenants to select an appropriate time to use the space. We may also offer community pages or features that allow users to share information with each other. You should not share any sensitive personal information through these community pages or features.

We use service providers to perform certain functions or provide or support certain Online Services on our behalf, such as software services, data hosting and processing, analytics, payment processing, technical and customer support and similar services. These service providers will access, store and process personal information as necessary to perform these services on our behalf.

We may also share anonymized or aggregated data with third parties, including our service providers and affiliates.

Information Collected Automatically

We use cookies and other technologies, such as web beacons, to collect information automatically when you use our Online Services. "Cookies" are small items of data that websites store in your browser. These data files contain information the website can use to track and organize the pages you have visited, remember your preferences and settings, and to gather information. Some of our web-based applications use "cookie" technology to measure website activity and tailor information to fit your personal interests. GWLRA uses both "session" and "persistent" cookies, both of which help us deliver a superior website experience that is designed to be fast, secure and personalized. You can accept or decline cookies through our cookie consent tool or through your browser settings or other tools as described below, but if you decline all cookies, this may lead to reduced website functionality. Web beacons are also referred to as "pixel tags." They are embedded in a web page and are not usually visible to you. Web beacons are used for many of the same purposes as cookies. They allow us or agents acting on our behalf to gather aggregate statistics about website usage patterns, including how many times a link or a page on a website is visited.

The type of data being collected

GWLRA and our service providers gather data through the use of cookies and similar technologies when you interact with our websites, apps and other Online Services. The data we collect includes IP address, device ID or other unique identifiers, Internet service provider name, device model, browser type, device parameters, information about how visitors explore our Online Services and about the number of new and repeat visitors, the pages they visited on our website, the date and time of their visits, the length of the visits, the referral URL, and information about the device and browser used and other similar details.

With whom the data is shared

We use third party web analytics tools on our Online Services, including our website and mobile applications (Google Analytics and Adobe Analytics). We also use third party advertising tools provided to us by advertising partners like Google, Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter. Advertising pixel tags on our website are deployed through Adobe Tag Manager.

These third parties use cookies and similar technologies to collect and analyze information about your online activity on our Online Services or in reaction to online advertisements.

The information collected by these online tracking tools may be combined with your personal information if you have entered your access ID and password or provided it to us through your persistent cookie.

Your choices

You can use our cookie consent tool to choose whether to allow cookies and similar tools to collect your information. You can also turn off personalized ads in the settings of Facebook, LinkedIn, or Twitter, turn off cookies through your browser settings (see How to Block Cookies below), or opt out of targeted advertising through industry tools such as the Digital Advertising Alliance of Canada's website.

How to Block Cookies

You can change your browser settings to block cookies from being stored on your computer or mobile device. The 'help' menu of your browser should provide information on how to manage your cookie settings.

To block cookies when using the browsers on your mobile device, refer to the procedure for turning cookies on or off in the Chrome and Safari apps. Please be aware, however, that blocking cookies may prevent some pages on our website or some parts of our application from displaying correctly, and some features may not be available.

Links to other Websites or services

Some of our Online Services contain links to third party websites, apps, mobile apps or digital platforms or services ("Third Party Services"), or allow you to interact with Third Party Services, that are not managed, maintained or controlled in any way by GWLRA. We don't control and are not responsible for any of these Third Party Services or their content, and as a result such links or features are not to be viewed as an endorsement, by GWLRA or any other party, of the products, services, advice or opinions or any other content of such services. These features and links to services that aren't maintained or controlled by GWLRA are provided for convenience only.
